Candidates convene

Prospective senate members back recycling improvements

By MINDY BUYCK
Student government editor

Most of the Student Senate candidates questioned at Wednesday night’s Student Senate forum said they would like to improve campus recycling policies.

Candidate Paul Hevesy said he does not know of a place on campus where plastics can be recycled. He said recycling is a campus issue because so many people are concentrated in one space.

Candidate Erin Wesley said she transferred from a junior college where the recycling program was 100 percent better. Wesley said the senate needs to try to get the administration involved in the recycling program.

Current senate member Erin Weed, who is seeking re-election, formed the Action Party. Weed is the chair of the recycling committee. She said she is working on several projects and doesn’t want to stop now. Weed said she is interested in bringing a pizza box recycling program to Eastern.

Many of the candidates said they are interested in getting students to attend senate meetings to see how senate operates.

Joe Brusky was the only candidate, excluding current senate members, who had attended a senate meeting. He said personally inviting people to the senate meetings might help boost attendance. He also said that senate members need to be accountable for their own attendance as well.

Senate member Keith Cosentino is running for re-election and said he believes the senate needs to focus on students’ needs.

“A lot of senators don’t seem really concerned about students and have their own personal agendas,” Cosentino said. He also said he thinks the senate committee system is failing because most committee

Senate elections begin today

By MINDY BUYCK
Student government editor

Student Senate elections begin today and will continue through Wednesday. Polling places will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Fourteen Student Senate seats are open. A referendum proposed by the Campus Improvement Task Force that would raise student fees by $50 for campus improvements will be on the ballot. Some of the improvements include a food court where McDonald’s is, a debit card program, a pilot program for internet access in some dorm rooms, and air conditioning in Weller, McKinney, Lincoln and Douglas halls.

Students who vote against the referendum will be asked to indicate which projects they do not want.

This is the first time the elections will be held on two days to increase student turnout. Director of the Elections Commission John Petrenko said he hopes this will increase voter turnout.

Student Body President Jason Anselment said that traditionally voter turnout is lower in the fall election than in the spring elections.

“I think all elections are important,” Anselment said. “This election we have a referendum on the ballot and that raises the stakes a little.”

Anselment said he was hoping for a large voter turnout because then students get their opinions heard.

“I don’t believe a person should talk about having their issues heard when they won’t vote for the person who will listen to them,” said Student Speaker Jeff Zilch.

Petrenko said he hopes the two-day elections will raise voter turnout to 15 to 20 percent. Last fall only 695 students voted and in 1994 only 950. In both elections the turnout was less than 10 percent. Petrenko said he hopes the referendum will cause students to vote.

Petrenko said the results of the election will be announced Wednesday night at the student senate meeting.

Unity Quilt to represent student organizations at rally

Sixty Recognized Student Organizations will be represented on the Unity Quilt that will be presented at the unity rally today.

Each RSO decorated a 3 by 3 square foot piece of material with their organization’s name and a message about unity. The squares will be sewn together to make the quilt.

“I was pretty surprised,” said rally co-organizer Sean Flowers. “We had about 20 until (Sunday). In the matter of a day, we came up with 40 more.”

Students for Unity, the group that organized the rally, said they are not sure where the quilt will be displayed, but hope it will be in a prominent location.

“The quilt is the legacy of the rally,” said one of the rally organizer’s Lance Phillips. The quilt will act as a reminder to the students about the rally and the commitments made there, he said.

Students for Unity will be holding the rally to discuss problems with discrimination on campus. The rally will be at 3:30 p.m. today in the Library Quad.

“What people get from the rally is seeing 2,000 people in the Library Quad, there for the purpose of celebrating our diversity,” Phillips said.

Charleston Mayor Dan Coughill and Eastern President David Jorns have given their support to the rally. Jorns will not be able to attend the rally because he must attend an Illinois Board of Higher Education meeting in Chicago.

“If (students) can come for just a half hour, even if they haven’t been the target of discrimination, to give the message that discrimination is wrong and to take back our campus,” said rally organizer Patty Rodriguez.

Rodriguez said the Students for Unity will continue to meet after the rally to talk about the discrimination problems on campus and stopping problems before they start.

Speakers at the rally include Eric Foote, rally organizer, Christina Hardin, educational director for the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Allies Union, Arnold Pulliam, last year’s Homecoming King and Kiley Allen, an involved student, will be speaking at the rally. University Board Chair and Interfraternity President Keith Lipke and Student Body President Jason Anselment also will be giving short speeches.

Latin leaders push for democracy

VINA DEL MAR, Chile (AP) – Ending a summit Monday, 23 Latin heads of state denounced U.S. moves to isolate Cuba, but also pressed Fidel Castro to institute democratic changes on the Communist island.

Leaders from Latin America, Spain and Portugal closed the summit with a statement expressing “firm rejection” of a U.S. law intended to punish foreign companies for doing business in Cuba.

The leaders urged the United States “to reconsider its enforcement.” The summit’s final joint statement said the Helms-Burton Act, which lets U.S. citizens sue foreign companies that use property seized from them in the 1959 Cuban revolution, violates international law by trying to make U.S. legislation apply internationally.

While that section of the statement seemed to be a victory for Castro, numerous appeals for the Cuban president to allow democratic change in his country kept him on the defensive.

In the call for democratization, the joint statement did not specifically name Castro or Cuba, although some leaders did and it was clear that Castro was the group’s main target.

Castro appeared unmoved. Speaking at a meeting of Chilean socialists Sunday, he said Cuba has its own brand of democracy.

In apparent response, Chilean President Eduardo Frei said in his closing remarks that “there is only one legitimate (democracy), which is the one that respects human rights and makes decisions according to majorities expressed in honest elections.” Spanish Prime Minister Jose Maria Aznar, meanwhile, said Monday that he had held a “tense” meeting with Castro and offered him unspecified “measures in favor of Cuba” in exchange for democratic change.

“I gave Castro a very clear message. I told him, ‘I want you to know that if you move your pieces, I am ready to move mine,’” Aznar said.

He said Castro’s reaction was not good, but did not elaborate.

Helicopter crash leaves three dead

GUTHRIE (AP) – A helicopter lifted from the ground, then flipped and crashed, killing three people, police said Monday.

Ford County Sheriff’s Police Sgt. Rocky Marron says the accident occurred around 11 a.m., immediately after the helicopter took off from a plant in this small farm town about four miles northeast of Gibson City.

Marron said three people were pronounced dead at the scene by the Ford County coroner’s office.

Coroner Jeff Baine said the victims were pilot C. Duane Baillie, 50, of Dewey; and passengers Lowell Davis, 62, of Strawn; and Jeffrey Hansen, 14, of Gibson City.

Marron said officials aren’t sure what caused the crash. Skies were clear at the time of the accident.

Marron said the Federal Aviation Administration has been called.

Investigators analyze Texaco recordings

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) – A senior executive at Texaco Inc. did not use a racial slur at a 1994 meeting, investigators hired by the company said today.

Their analysis of a tape recording, enhanced by sound experts, contradicts earlier claims that former Texaco treasurer Robert Ulrich referred to minority employees as “niggers.” The investigators concluded that the word Ulrich used on tape was actually “Nicholas,” according to the report issued by outside lawyer Michael Armstrong. It was part of a reference to St.

Nicholas during a disparagement of the black cultural festival Kwanzaa.

“The phrase ‘(expletive) niggers’ just doesn’t exist on the tape,” Armstrong said this morning.

Texaco chairman Peter Bijur said he still found the words on the tape troubling.

“The findings merely set the record straight as to the exact words spoken in the conversations,” he said in a statement released today. “But they do nothing to change the categorically unacceptable context and tone of those conversations.” The Wall Street Journal reported today that federal prosecutors planned to file criminal charges against at least one individual in the Texaco case this week, perhaps as early as Tuesday.

A call to the office of U.S. Attorney Mary Jo White was not immediately returned.

Prosecutors have been investigating whether to file obstruction-of-justice charges against Texaco employees who allegedly are heard on tape plotting to destroy documents in a $520 million discrimination lawsuit filed by nearly 1,500 black employees.

chairs are not giving committee members good leadership or agendas to follow.

The relationship between the senate and other Recognized Student Organizations was discussed.

Candidate Doug Stepansky said it was his understanding that senate members are required to attend RSO meetings and resident hall council meetings. He said that the attendance is needed to keep good communication between the senate and other organizations.

“A lot of senators don’t seem really concerned about students and have their own personal agendas.”
–Keith Cosentino, senate member

Candidate Renny Seiwert said he would make a strong effort to attend Resident Hall Association meetings.

Donoho said he was pleased with the number of the candidates who participated in the debate. Only two people attended the forum to listen to the candidates’ stances. He said he thought student senate had been focusing on being more accountable but senate needed to focus on being more dedicated.

Fourteen Student Senate seats are up for election, five on campus, three off campus and six at large.

Workers satisfied with wage increase

By LISA GREENBERG
Staff writer

The Civil Service negotiators and building and food service workers said they are satisfied with the 3 percent wage increase that the Board of Trustees passed on Nov. 4.

“It was an interest-based negotiation and both sides feel that they signed a good wage agreement for the coming year,” said Lloyd Leonard, labor relations manager for Civil Service contracts.

Physical Plant Director Ted Weidner said the wage increase was a “standard operating procedure” because the contract is reviewed every year.

The contract took effect Sept. 15 and will extend to Sept. 14, 1997. The 201 building and food service employees approved the contract Oct. 9.

The contract is retroactive, which means starting from Sept. 15, the workers will receive their raise for the hours they worked in September and October in their November pay-checks.

The one-year contract will equalize the salaries of Eastern’s building and food service workers to the state average for their classification.

According to the administration’s report to the BOT, employees in job classifications covered by the bargaining unit that are below the State Universities Civil Service System average wage rate should receive an hourly wage increase to the state average for their classification.

One employee at the Taylor/Lawson Hall Dining Service said she is pleased with the 3 percent increase, but thinks there should be more benefits for the workers.

Eastern open house draws 2,000 people to campus

By ASHLEY MARQUART
Staff writer

Almost 2,000 prospective students and families Monday attended Eastern’s open house.

Boyd Bradshaw, admissions counselor and open house coordinator, said he was pleased with this open house.

“I feel the open house program is very informative and successful,” Bradshaw said. “We’ve had record numbers at each open house in the last two years and they continually seem to increase in visitors.”

Bradshaw said that 575 students registered. Bradshaw also said 100 more prospective Eastern students attended this year’s open house as compared to the one held last November.

Bradshaw said most of the students are unsure which college they are going to attend, but some already have applied to Eastern. Some will base their decision about what college to attend on Monday’s open house, he said.

Bradshaw said he and many faculty members think the open house is a “growing success.” Open house days are so important because prospective students have access to faculty, residence halls, and facilities, he said.

The tours began at 8:30 a.m. at Old Main and ran until 11:30 a.m. Tour groups left every 15 minutes and continued for 30 minutes.

Admissions did their best to keep the tour groups as small as possible so that visitors could receive individual attention, Bradshaw said.

Forum to address racism problems

By MINDY BUYCK
Student government editor

The “Not in Our Town” forum against hate crimes and violence will be held at 7 p.m. tonight in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

Freshman Liz Halbert organized the event, which is co-sponsored by Student Government and University Board.

The program consists of two 30-minute videos followed by a panel discussion with audience feedback and questions. The program will focus on race, but discussions also can include religion and sexuality.

Halbert said she participated in a “Not in Our Town” program when she was in high school.

“It’s a very enlightening program,” Halbert said.

She said the program focuses on what people should do when they are involved in racial incidents.

Halbert said Charleston Mayor Dan Cougill will serve on the panel.

She said several members of Recognized Student Organizations will sit on the panel including representatives from the Latin American Student Organization, the Black Student Union/Black Greek Council, the Panhellenic Council, the Multi-Cultural Student Union, the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Allies Union, the American Indian Movement and a representative of the Jewish faith and community.

Halbert said she doesn’t want people walking away from the program with any negative feelings.

“I want them to leave feeling optimistic,” Halbert said. “If they feel things are bad maybe they will begin to think things will get better.”

Halbert said she thought this program was needed in Charleston.

Halbert said students who have been the target of racial slurs and Homecoming incidents are examples of why the program is needed.

Halbert said she sees many similarities between Charleston and the town in the first video.

She said both are small towns where people dismissed small incidents of racism and then realized they had a big problem.

“If we don’t do something about it (racism) it’s going to build and build and then explode,” Halbert said.

Writing Competency Exam should be open to students sooner

The Council on Academic Affairs Tuesday unanimously approved a policy to allow students with 45 credit hours to take the writing competency exam.

The change will give many students the opportunity to take the exam during the second semester of their sophomore year.

Currently, students who have 60 credit hours and who have successfully completed English 1001C and 1002C or the equivalent are eligible to take the exam.

The decision will benefit the students who want to take the test to get it out of the way before they graduate.

But why should students have to wait until they have 45 hours?

Students who have successfully completed the English requirements or who are exempt from the courses should be able to take the exam, regardless of the number of credit hours they have completed.

Students are required to pass the writing competency exam to receive an undergraduate degree.

At the Nov. 7 CAA meeting, Doug Bower, director of testing services and the writing competency exam, said the change will benefit the students.

"For students who are a little weak in their writing, it will encourage them to seek help earlier so that they don't get to the point that they've met all graduate requirements and then they don't get a degree because they can't pass the exam," Bower said.

If the students already have demonstrated their writing skills in the two required English courses, they should be able to test their skills immediately.

A student who has just completed the English courses will be able to apply what he or she just learned and has a strong chance to pass the test.

If they have the opportunity to take the competency exam earlier and don't successfully complete it, they have plenty of time to retake the exam.

The change to let students who have 45 credit hours take the writing competency exam was a good move.

Now, the administration should consider allowing students with fewer hours to take the exam.

“today's quote

The right to write badly was the privilege we widely used.

—Isaac Babel

A Microsoft advertisement in the Nov. 18 issue of Time features a child innocently asking her mother about racism.

"I learned something new today," the girl says to her mother in the ad. "One time we had laws that made black people use different drinking fountains and bathrooms and schools.

"But they're changed, right mom? So if the laws don't keep us apart anymore, what does?"

Maybe officials at Texaco could answer her question.

In August 1994, senior company officials were in a closed meeting making plans to destroy documents that were to be used in a federal discrimination lawsuit and referring to minorities as "black jelly beans" and "niggers," according to the Nov. 4 issue of The New York Times.

Richard Lundwall, the senior coordinator of personnel services at Texaco's finance department, secretly taped the discussion to make sure the minutes from the meeting were accurate.

Earlier in 1994, six employees filed a discrimination suit against Texaco on behalf of 1,500 minority workers. The suit alleged that the company repeatedly passed over minorities for promotions for less experienced white employees and "fostered a racially hostile environment."

"There is no point in even keeping the restricted version anymore," said Robert Ulrich, the company treasurer, in the meeting in reference to a document that would be used in the case.

"Let me just shred this thing and any other restricted version like it," Lundwall answered. He was laid off from the company in August and turned the tape recordings to the plaintiffs' lawyers. The New York Times obtained the excerpts from the recordings.

Texaco Chairman Peter Bijur said the incident is a "punch in the gut," in an article published in the Nov. 7 issue of CNN Interactive.

"I am deeply angered and saddened at the allegations contained in the article (in The New York Times)," Bijur wrote in a letter to all employees. "... Let there be no mistake: there is no place for this kind of misconduct at Texaco."

NATALIE GOTT
Regular columnist

"The public outcry should be a sign to Texaco ... that racist remarks will not be tolerated in the workplace."

There is no place for that kind of misconduct anywhere. This incident answers question posed by the little girl in the Microsoft ad.

Racism still exists at all levels, but it is much more subtle than it was when African Americans were forced to sit in the back of buses or forced to use different restrooms than whites.

Unfortunately, subtle racism of the 1990s harms minorities just as much, if not more, than the blatant prejudice of the past.

The company suspended two executives and cut off some benefits to two retirees after they heard the tapes. It also ended medical insurance and other benefits for Ulrich, who retired last year, and Lundwall, who was laid off in August.

Texaco appointed a prominent lawyer and author with experience in racial issues to work with the company to expand diversity training. It is adopting a six-point program to express its remorse for what happened during the meeting and to try to improve employee relations.

But the company officials' swift action won't be enough to satisfy Texaco employees, shareholders or the general public.

The Leadership Conference of Civil Rights asked the government to join a discrimination lawsuit brought against the company by some of its employees in a request to the general counsel of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

On Saturday, civil rights leader Jesse Jackson threatened to organize a boycott on Texaco if company officials do not have a definite plan about hiring and promoting minorities.

Fifty demonstrators including representatives from the Dallas chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Saturday picketed a Texaco Service Station, the CNN Interactive report said.

The public outcry should be a sign to Texaco and all companies that racist remarks will not be tolerated in the workplace. It should be a sign that they won't be tolerated anywhere.

Sophomore encounters racism in Charleston, campus communities

Dear editor:

I agree with freshman Liz Halbert who said the welcome sign to Charleston should be changed to WATCH OUT! I had the unfortunate experience of being called a nigger, twice in only my second year attending Eastern. The first incident occurred some time last year when I was out with my friends. Granted, I was being silly and found myself in the middle of the street, the driver of the car decided that he or she would get back at me. The driver honked the horn and yelled, "Watch where you're going, you f---ing nigger." I was shocked at first. Later, I realized that in a small town like this, it was to be expected. Initially, I was very angry and felt that I had done something wrong. However, I decided that I was not the one who should feel bad.

your turn

Why should I feel shame for someone else's blatant ignorance? Since that was the first time that someone called me that here at Eastern, I decided to forget about it. To my utter disbelief, I heard the very word repeated to me on a second occasion.

As I was walking out of the Student Services Building, I saw this student and I looked him in the eyes. He must have thought I was really staring at him. Next thing I know, he says, "What the f--- are you looking at, nigger?" Immediately afterwards I asked him, "Why would you say something like that?" Guess what his response to my questions was? He said, without even thinking, "F--- off." I decided that this person was obviously rude and racist. I also decided that I was not going to stand for that kind of behavior anymore. If Eastern claims to be a diverse university, we need to show that we truly are. If you are the kind of person who does not get along well with people of other ethnic backgrounds, then suggest you do not attend school here, or anywhere else. I am not blaming everyone else for one person's mistake. I just wish that for one day in my life, I would have no worries about ever being called a nigger.

UB to host national talent search contest

By LESLEY R. CHINN
Staff writer

A talent search contest featuring Eastern students will be held today at 8 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The program will be sponsored by University Board Special Events Committee in conjunction with MasterCard Acts Program, which is in its third year hosting the event. This is Eastern’s first year to schedule the local competition. Admission for the event is free.

“Eastern was selected to participate in the competition because it is a school with lots of talent and diversity,” said Student Life Graduate Assistant Paul Mitchell. “The contest allows students a chance for stardom.” This event will feature a wide range of students competing in the music and comedy categories. Groups and solo acts such as the Dueling Pianos, Chronic Itch, K-Love and Blue, Kitaka Turner, Sourou Jones and Latricia Olds will be among the featured acts in this talent search.

Winners of the contest will be awarded a first, second or a third place plaque and recognition in

The Daily Eastern News. First place winners will go on to compete in one of six regional semifinal competitions during January or February 1997 at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

Winners of the regional competition will then advance to the finals scheduled for Feb. 23, 1997, where one winning act will be awarded the title “Best Student Act in America.”

Beijing educator to give lecture, attend workshop

By OLATOYE BAIYEWU
Staff writer

Mujin Zhang, the vice chair of the International Academic Exchange Committee of Tsinghua University in Beijing will be at Eastern to give a lecture on “China, Taiwan and Hong Kong: A People’s Republic Perspective.”

The lecture will be at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Phipps Lecture Hall in the Physical Science Building.

This visit is on the heels of King-yuh Chang’s, the chairman of Mainland Affairs Council of the Republic of China. This lecture will counter Chang’s on the thorny issue of South Asia.

Zhang also will be at a workshop conducted by John Faust, a professor of political science. This workshop will be from 10:15 to 11:30 a.m. in Coleman Hall, Room 206. This workshop is titled “U.S. – China Relations”.

Zhang held a variety of positions before his present assignment. He has been an associate professor in social sciences from 1953 to 1982 at Tsinghua University, chair of the department from 1982 to 1984 and vice president for the administration from 1984 to 1990. He also was secretary of the Communist Youth Corps in 1984.

After the Tiananmen Square tragedy in 1989, Zhang became the Consul for Educational Affairs at the People’s Republic of China Consulate General in Chicago. He is presently a professor of contemporary Chinese history along with his vice chair position.

Laurence Thorsen, a professor of political science, said he hopes Zhang will speak about “free speech, human rights and if Beijing would allow the government in Hong Kong to maintain its pluralistic system.”

Thorsen also said he hopes Zhang can answer a few questions. “Is the local government in Hong Kong going to be subject to the whims and caprices of the People’s Republic?” Thorsen asked.

In comparison, he said of Chang’s speech on Oct. 30, “Chang gave a wonderful scenario on the US and Taiwan relationship and the economic growth of the region.”

Thorsen said he wants to wait to hear Zhang before he can adequately assess the whole situation of the region.

Lab hours extended

Computer lab hours in the Student Services Building are being extended Monday through Thursday and on Sundays to accommodate students during the weeks before fall final examinations.

The lab now will be open from 8 a.m. to 2 a.m. Monday through Thursday, from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Saturday and from 2 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sunday. Student Services began the extended lab hours in the fall of 1995 because many students found it difficult to get access of the lab due to the rush of finals.

“I hope students will use this,” said Brian Anderson, vice president for student affairs. “If we prove that we need it and like the new hours, then perhaps the administration will keep doing this on a regular basis.”

During Thanksgiving and Christmas break the lab hours will remain consistent with the office hours of the building and will close at 4:30 p.m. The lab will be closed Nov. 23 and 24 and Nov. 28 through Dec. 1.

seminar to focus on male emotions

activities editor

Eastern's Counseling Center is sponsoring a Life Skills Seminar Wednesday to help men cope with society's mixed messages and role unges. 'Men's Issues' will be presented William Kirk, professor of psychology at Eastern, at noon in the nsas room of the Martin Luther ag Jr. University Union. Kirk said he will "cover issues t make the adjustment of men in lay's society a little more diffi- t."

The seminar will cover men coping with their sexuality, which tends to include internalizing feel- ings and talking about more adap- tive ways of coping and releasing pressure, Kirk said. The seminar will also include a historical tracing of the previously mandatory "macho" role to a more androgynous role that shows the acceptance of a more artistic and softer side of the male, Kirk said. "The environment still is not as inviting as with the softer traits of men that we would like and men sometimes need to investigate and invite their own softness to come forth," Kirk said. Marriage is also a place in which roles are changing, and families with two incomes or with egalitari- an parenting are an example that show the change in today's society, Kirk said. Kirk said the seminar's topic was "born out of an apparent inter- est of a number of men who have confronted their adjustment to a changing world to where a gender role is more apparent, more neces- sary." Kirk said he is optimistic about the outcome of the seminar and thinks it will go well.

leno's apology not enough for lawyers

FLANTA (AP) — Jay Leno said he was sorry, but it didn't appease Richard Jewell's lawyers. During his Oct. 28 show, Leno apologized to Jew- for making him the butt of jokes and for calling m the "una-doofus." The security guard was aared last month as a suspect in the Centennial ympic Park bombing.

"We did make fun of the guy, and now it turns out the FBI has nothing," said Leno, joking that his apology "has nothing to do with the fact if he wins this lawsuit with NBC he'll be my new boss." Attor- ney Lin Wood said they want to review tapes of the Leno shows while they consider suing NBC over its coverage of Jewell.

Braves' Smoltz nabbs NL Cy Young award

NEW YORK (AP) – John Smoltz can rest easy. He finally has a Cy Young Award, just like teammates Greg Maddux and Tom Glavine.

“Everybody felt I needed this to be on par with Greg and Tommy,” Smoltz said Monday after scoring a landslide victory over Florida’s Kevin Brown. “At least winning the award takes the pressure off of that.” Atlanta’s prized pitching staff became the first to win four consecutive Cy Young Awards and has won five of six, a streak that began with Glavine’s in 1991.

Maddux won for the Chicago Cubs in 1992 and then won in each of his first three seasons with the Braves.

“I know down the road I’ll be honored to have played with those two guys,” Smoltz said. “Everybody felt I needed to win it more than I did. For years things did not go my way and I was pitching hurt.” Smoltz received 26 first-place votes and two second-place votes for 136 points in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Brown was second with two firsts, 26 seconds and 88 points.

Smoltz, a 29-year-old right-hander, was 24-8 with a 2.94 ERA, winning 14 consecutive decisions from April 9-June 19. He led the majors in wins and his total was the Braves’ highest since 1965, when Tony Cloninger went 24-11. Smoltz also led the majors in strikeouts with 276, innings (253 2-3).

“Aside from us winning the World Series, this is the greatest thing that’s ever happened to me,” he said.

Smoltz, who earned a $250,000 bonus for winning the award on top of his $5.25 million salary, became a free agent following the World Series. “There’s a lot pressure to stay here, a lot of pressure from people to do the right thing, do the nice thing,” Smoltz said. “My idea of a perfect situation would be to stay here, but I’m not going to close any doors.”

Hideo Nomo of the Dodgers was fourth with five points. Tied with Maddux for fifth were Trevor Hoffman of the Padres and Todd Worrell of the Dodgers.

Brown got a $25,000 bonus for finishing second, Andy Benes of the Cardinals got $75,000 bonus for finishing third (nine points) and Maddux got a $50,000 bonus for finishing in a fifth-place tie (three points).

Atlanta’s six-game World Series loss to the Yankees took some of the pleasure away for Smoltz.

“That tarnishes this a little bit. I truly wanted to win the World Series,” Smoltz said. “But if I can remove myself from being a team player and just look at it personally, this is the most gratifying award I’ve gotten to this point.” He also paid tribute to Maddux.

“I consider Greg Maddux to be the best pitcher in baseball,” he said. “He helped me out a lot. He kept telling me, ‘This is a special year. Make every game count.’ Coming from him, it meant a lot.”

Young concussion concerns 49ers

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) – Steve Young, staggered by a second concussion in three weeks, almost certainly won’t play next Sunday and teammates worried about the physical toll on the 49ers quarterback from the succession of head blows.

Young was described as “very doubtful” for San Francisco’s upcoming game against Baltimore, though coach George Seifert left open a slight possibility that he could suit up if he receives clearance from his neurologist.

Young was scheduled to see a specialist Tuesday, although team physician Dr. James Klint has already recommended that Young sit out at least one week.

Elvis Grbac would start against the Ravens if Young can’t play.

Young’s latest concussion, suffered during Sunday’s 20-17 overtime loss to Dallas, was not as severe as the initial concussion sustained Oct. 27 during the first series at Houston, but the repeated episodes are troubling.

“That definitely sends up some red flags,” said left tackle Steve Wallace, who has suffered concussions in the past and now plays with a special bubble covering the top of his helmet for added head protection. “I’d take a little time and get myself well.”

Seifert said the team is taking all due precautions and the possible cumulative effect from the concussions remains a serious concern.

“Troy Aikman has gone through the same thing and is still playing effectively as we all saw (Sunday),” Seifert said. “It’s something that is part of the game, but to where we are in this situation, I’d be surprised if it’s to a Chris Miller position or Al Toon. I don’t believe it is, but I’m not a doctor and I can’t emphatically say that’s the case.” Miller, a former quarterback with the St. Louis Rams, and Toon, who played wide receiver for the New York Jets, both were driven into retirement after suffering repeated concussions.

Tight end Brent Jones said he’s worried Young, who’s also been bothered by a chronic groin strain, might try to continue playing when he should give himself more time to heal.

“I hope Steve’s smart enough to realize – and I’m sure he is – that football is not more important than the rest of his life,” Jones said. “It’s just a good precaution to make sure he checks that out and is smart with that.” Young, who has been plagued by injuries this season, has missed all or parts of seven games.

He has been bothered by the groin problem since pulling the muscle in the second game of the season.

Young suffered a concussion against Houston when he took a helmet-to-helmet hit from linebacker Micheal Barrow. Against Dallas, Young was knocked out in the second quarter after absorbing a head-on tackle from linebacker Jim Schwantz and another hit later from blitzing safety Darren Woodson.

Seifert said Young, who in the past has been able to avoid most direct hits through his scrambling, isn’t as mobile this season because of the lingering groin injury.

“It’s not as though this groin situation has gone totally away,” Seifert said. “He is better but I’m sure that has an impact on everything that’s taking place as far as his movement is concerned. ... He’s trying to do something that he’s not, which is a standup quarterback in the pocket. Before he used to have quick feet and he didn’t have these problems.”

Boston College players will miss rest of season

BOSTON (AP) – Boston College has decided that the 13 football players suspended in a gambling probe will not play again this season.

Their suspensions, which began in last Saturday’s loss to Notre Dame, will last at least for the remaining two games, against Temple and Miami, BC announced Monday.

If and when suspended players will be reinstated will be determined on a case-by-case basis, the school said.

Two players included among the 13 but not identified by the school allegedly bet against Boston College in a 45-17 loss to Syracuse on Oct. 26. Coach Dan Henning has said they won’t be allowed to return, and the school confirmed Monday that any player who bet on a BC game would not be reinstated.

The suspended players are seniors Brian Maye and John Coleman, juniors Scott Dragos, Marcus Bembry, Paul Cary, Chris Cosenza, Steve Everson and Kyle Geiselman, and sophomores Jermaine Monk, Jamall Anderson, Dan Collins, Brandon King and Rob Tardio.

Only Dragos and Monk were starters at Pittsburgh, the only game players implicated in the scandal participated in after the Syracuse game. Monk took the starting spot from Maye, who suffered a season-ending elbow dislocation against Syracuse. Everson already had been suspended for refusing to re-enter the Pittsburgh game.

The Eagles (4-6) began their current three-game losing streak in the Syracuse game.

The decision to keep the 13 players off the team for the rest of the season doesn’t figure to have a major impact on the outcome of the remaining games since BC still should be a big favorite over Temple and a huge underdog to Miami.

BC plans to submit to the NCAA a summary of its investigation once it’s completed. That report will contain the school’s recommendations for reinstating suspended players, the university said.

Illinois fires Tepper following loss to Ohio State

CHAMPAIGN (AP) – The University of Illinois fired football coach Lou Tepper after a four-game losing streak capped by Saturday’s 48-0 loss to No. 2 Ohio State, the school announced Monday.

Athletic Director Ron Guenther praised Tepper’s “class and dignity” in a news release announcing the firing.

“Unfortunately, we have not been as successful on the field as we would expect and we feel a change in leadership is necessary at this time,” Guenther said in the statement.

Tepper, 51, said in the same statement he disagreed with Guenther’s decision, but would stay on to coach Illinois’ final 1996 games at Minnesota Saturday and against Wisconsin Nov. 23.

“I would hope that the fans will support their (players’) efforts the rest of the season and during the transition to the new staff,” Tepper said.

Tyrone Washington, a safety who played under Tepper from 1992-95, said he respected the coach.

“Things just didn’t work out for him.” The firing makes Tepper the third Big Ten coach in as many weeks to lose his job. Purdue coach Jim Colletto resigned and Indiana coach Bill Mallory was fired. Minnesota coach Jim Wacker is also at risk going into his last two games, against Illinois and Iowa.

Illinois (2-7, 1-5 Big Ten) lost its first three games by a combined score of 116-11, sending already dismal attendance at home games into a tailspin. The team saw an average of more than 16,000 empty seats in Memorial Stadium this year, including a crowd of 54,000 in the 69,000-seat stadium for the loss to Ohio State.

Money is a big concern in the athletic department, which must make money with marquee sports like football and basketball to support all of its programs, UI President James Stukel told The (Champaign) News-Gazette last week.

“In the end, it’s a business ... you have to pay the bills,” Stukel said before Tepper’s firing.

Tepper has a 25-29-2 record in five seasons at Illinois. Critics say the former defensive coordinator has produced unexciting football, focusing on defense and suffering from an inconsistent offense.

Illinois has had three offensive coordinators under Tepper’s tenure. Tepper fired Tom Beck after the 1992 Illini averaged just 295 yards on offense.

Former pro quarterback Greg Landry helped produce a 7-5 1994 team that won the Liberty Bowl, but Tepper fired Landry over personal differences early in 1995.

Current offensive coordinator Paul Schudel, the former head coach at Miami of Ohio, followed Landry.

Tepper’s defenses have been among the best in the nation, ranking ninth in 1994, 10th in 1989 (when he was defensive coordinator) and 14th in 1993. But this year’s Illini defense is mired near the bottom of the Big Ten, suffering from the loss of linebackers Kevin Hardy and Simeon Rice, who graduated to the NFL after last season.

Tepper has won praise for running a clean program with a player graduation rate above 90 percent. His program to promote racial harmony among players also has won him accolades.

“Our philosophy has been to educate by promoting academic achievement, positive social behavior, racial harmony and hard-nosed winning football,” Tepper said in the statement. “I’m sorry that we have not had more success on the field this season.”

4.5 minutes per game in 1994-95.

Loos said he is still uncertain about his team’s capabilities even after the first exhibition game against Sports Crusaders out of Louisville, Ky.

“We won 145-76, so it was not a very good game,” he said. “We did some really good things. We passed well and made some good decisions.”

As for the rest of the year, Loos is counting on the confidence gained from last year’s success.

“We had some measure of success last year, and that gave our guys confidence,” he said.

The Governors’ non-conference schedule includes games at the Hawaii Tournament and games against Wisconsin-Green Bay and Iowa.

Austin Peay hosts Eastern on Jan. 2 and travels to Charleston Feb. 1.

Loos said he is not sure about Eastern Illinois.

“We’re all waiting to see how they do,” he said. “No one knows much about them.”

The other five returning letterwinners include sophomore center Jonleda Buck and sophomore guard Crlita Eldar. Both were starters last season.

Buck averaged 14.8 points per game last year, shooting 60 percent from the floor and 33 percent from three-point land. Eldar is shooting only 48 percent from the floor. From behind the arc, though, she is shooting at a 45 percent clip.

As a team, MTSU averaged 47 percent field goal shooting. From behind the arc, the Lady Raiders averaged 34 percent.

If there was one weak spot for MTSU last year it was in holding onto the ball. The team turned the ball just over 19 times a game last season.

Panther running game taking dominating role

By BRIAN LESTER
Sports editor

Running the football has become even more prominent over the last three weeks of the Panthers’ football season.

During the first three games of their four-game road trip, the Panthers have already chalked up 1,050 yards on the ground compared to only 372 yards passing.

As for putting points on the scoreboard, the Panther running attack has accounted for 13 of Eastern’s 17 touchdowns in the last three games.

Six of those rushing touchdowns came in Saturday’s 41-21 drubbing of Southeast Missouri State.

Regarding the success of the running game, Panther head coach Bob Spoo is not surprised by how the Panther backfield performed during the season.

“All along the running game has been our forte,” Spoo said on Sunday. “We knew we had to do that (run the ball) and it there is no surprise about it.”

And there were no exceptions to the running game in Saturday’s victory.

Sophomore Justin Lynch rushed for 110 yards and two touchdowns on 23 carries in Saturday’s game.

Lynch continues to lead the team for the season in visits to the end zone, as he now has nine while rushing for 760 yards.

Freshman Jabarey McDavid also continues to be a key piece of the Panthers’ running game puzzle.

In Saturday’s game, McDavid carried the ball 20 times for 124 yards while scoring once.

McDavid’s performance marked the third straight time he has rushed over the century mark, and his performance coupled with Lynch’s performance was only the ninth time in Panther history that two tailbacks have rushed for over 100 yards in the same game.

McDavid has rushed for two touchdowns and 403 yards since making his Panther debut three weeks ago against Tennessee Tech.

Junior tailback Ibrahim Bawa has also been involved in the running game’s recent success.

Against Southeast, Bawa tallied up 52 yards on 12 carries while scoring two touchdowns. On the season, Bawa has rushed for 512 yards and six touchdowns.

Sophomore fullback Conrad Praamsma also got involved in the scoring attack Saturday afternoon, as he scored once while rushing for 70 yards on five carries.

Praamsma’s performance upped his season total to 254 yards and two touchdowns.

Senior fullback Chris Szarka also saw action in Saturday’s game, as he carried the ball six times for 13 yards. For the season, Szarka has rushed for 90 yards while scoring one touchdown.

Running backs coach Brian Jenkins is pleased with the variety of offensive threats he has in the backfield.

“The one thing I stress to the guys is that it’s easy to stop a soldier, but it’s hard to stop an army of soldiers,” Jenkins said.

Jenkins is also pleased with the way the running game has gone over the last few weeks.

“My guys knew all along that there would come a time when the running game would carry the team,” Jenkins said.

“Our goal is to get better in each game. In the game before (Austin Peay) we scored four touchdowns, in this past game we scored we scored six touchdowns and this week our goal is to score eight.”

But being able to get into the end zone would not be as easy of a task without the help of Eastern’s offensive line.

“Our offensive line has done a tremendous job,” Jenkins said.

“My guys have the easy part of just running through the holes that are created by the line. By the time the third quarter rolls around, the opponent’s defensive line is going to be tired after going up against our offensive line.”

er to get over 200 digs is freshman middle hitter Daria McConnell who has 214.

Silke is the team-leader in blocks with 34 solo blocks and 59 block assists.

Lamp is second on the team in blocks with 17 solo blocks and 54 block assists.

With five different players in the top two of their respective categories, Eastern cannot single out one person to stop.

“We’re a well balanced team with not one person hitting well, we have four people hitting the ball well,” Hardaway said. “People look at teams and say if they shut down one person they will win the match, but you can’t do that with this team.”

Even with the last two conference matches coming up this weekend, Ralston said that the team will not be looking past Evansville.

“We need to go into the tournament on a winning streak, and this match will be the difference between a two-game winning streak and a six-game winning streak,” she said.

Hardaway knows what his team has to do to win.

“I know their high up in the OVC and we have to stop Vanessa (Wells), Lindsey (Celba) and Lori (Sommer) to win the match,” he said. “I also know that most of the teams in the OVC are defensive teams.”

Ralston said this match will get them prepared for this weekend by getting the competition back in after an off weekend.

exhibition game, junior forward Barбора Garbova and senior forward Sarah Probst both reached double figures with 18 and 15 points respectively. The next highest scorer was Angie Patzner with nine points. Conversely, the Russian team had four players in double figures.

To succeed this season, at least three to four players have to score in double figures in order for Eastern to stay competitive this season in the Ohio Valley Conference.

Consistency: This term should come as no surprise to anyone since consistency is a key to success in any sport.

The season had everything from a three-game winning streak to a five-game losing streak coupled in with a lot of two-game winning streaks followed by two-game losing skids. Like I said before, time will once again improve this.

Lady Panthers can improve on last year's roller coaster

Well, the women's team just played an exhibition game against the Russians Friday night, and although the Lady Panthers did fall in overtime 74-65, I was surprised by the outcome.

You see, in last year's exhibition game, Eastern was handed a 57-43 loss after trailing 25-18 at halftime.

I don't know about you, but a nine point loss is not as bad a 14-point loss.

However, the fact that the women's team was actually able to rally back from an 11-point deficit with nine minutes left in the second half to force overtime by tying the game at 59-59 was an accomplishment by itself.

Granted, the Lady Panthers only scored three times in the extra session, but the fact that they were able to comeback and make it a game is a good sign for this year since second-half comebacks were few and far between for the Lady Panthers last year.

In fact, the women's team usually completely broke down in the second half and the only chance the Lady Panthers had of making a second half comeback was in their next game.

But forget about the rally and the loss because there will probably be a few more losses along the Lady Panthers' road to turning around a 12-15 1995-96 campaign.

What I'm trying to get across to the fans is that the Lady Panthers might just be able to throw last year's letdown into the closet of bad sports memories if certain things from Friday's game can be improved on.

I'm referring to the same closet that our own men's soccer team threw its misery; I mean Missouri Valley Conference tournament hopes into after blowing a "probably should have won" game to 4-10 Drake on Friday afternoon by a 2-0 count.

So here is what has to be improved on from Friday's exhibition game in order to have a winning season.

Turnovers: Since basketball is not related to the bakery business and Christmas is still over a month away, turnovers have to be limited. Last year the women's basketball team finished the season with 606 turnovers. In the exhibition game on Friday night Eastern turned the ball over 23 times.

Last year head coach John Klein and the players on the team stressed the importance of keeping turnovers down, and since I'm pretty sure the team does not want to go through a repeat of last year, the turnovers will decrease once regular season play gets going.

Point distribution: In Friday's

Eastern junior setter Kara Harper sets the ball at practice Monday. The Panthers hope to extend their winning streak to four games at 7 p.m. tonight at Evansville.

Ohio Valley favorites get set for season

Governors hope confidence carries into 1996-97 season

With a successful season last year, expectations are high for Austin Peay's men's basketball team for the 1996-97 season.

The Governors finished the season at 19-11, going 10-6 in the Ohio Valley Conference, 3-0 in the OVC tournament and 0-1 in the NCAA tournament.

And head coach Dave Loos said he is anxious to see what happens this season.

"We're excited about this year," he said. "The expectations about the year are high."

Austin Peay finished third in the OVC, and beat Eastern Kentucky, Tennessee State and Murray State in the conference tournament to earn the OVC's automatic bid to the NCAA tournament. The Governors fell 90-79 to Georgia Tech in the first round.

Loos has four of his five starters back this season, as well as the two top players off the bench. He said having those players back will benefit this year's team.

"When you have a bunch of veterans coming back, they can help the new players get into the system," he said.

The main man at Austin Peay is back for his senior year. Forward Bubba Wells is not only the Governors' leading scorer, he returns this season as the nation's leading scorer with his 26.3 point per game average.

"He's an outstanding player," Loos said. "He's just a guy that keeps improving his game. Just when you think he topped out, he does things he hasn't done in the past."

Wells was named the OVC tournament MVP, as he scored 35 points in the championship game. He was also the 1995-96 male athlete of the year in the OVC.

Three of Wells' fellow starters return with him this season, including guard Joe Sibbit (10.9 ppg), forward Reggie Crenshaw (seven rebounds per game) and guard Colby Pierce (5.8 ppg).

Also joining the team is 6 foot 10 inch center Josh Hallat. Hallat sat out last season after transferring from Indiana State University.

"(Hallat) will give us our first legitimate center we've had in a while," Loos said.

The center transferred after his playing time was cut from 13.5 minutes per game in 1993-94 to

The Panther volleyball team begins its final week of competition tonight when it travels to Evansville University tonight in a non-conference game at 7 p.m.

"We hope to get off to a good start and get a 3-0 victory," Panther head coach Betty Ralston said. "If we don't win the first game we want to win the match 3-1. The goal for this match is to get off to a quick start."

Evansville (9-21) is coming off a 15-6, 9-15, 15-12 and 16-14 victory over American University (Washington D.C.) in the Saluki Invitational.

The Aces have gone 1-3 against Ohio Valley Conference teams this year. They started off the season losing to Tennessee Tech 3-0; they lost to Murray State 3-1, lost to Middle Tennessee 3-1 and defeated Austin Peay 3-1.

Despite the difference in records, Evansville head coach Mark Hardaway expects a good match.

"I expect this to be a pretty good match," he said. "Last year we played them at the end of the year and we played decent."

"We are playing better than before, and last year when we played them (Eastern), we were done with conference and had no incentive to beat them. This year we're in the running in the conference."

The Aces are led in kills by junior middle hitter Deena Silke who has 339. The other player to achieve over 300 kills is senior middle hitter Misty Lamp who has 320.

Sophomore setter Betsy Knott is the team leader in hitting percentage with .311. She also leads the team in assists with 1063 and is fourth on the team with 139 digs.

Senior middle hitter Jeanne Braun leads the team in aces with 43 and in digs with 227. The other play-

Last year, the Ohio Valley Conference women's basketball crown was shared by both the Lady Raiders of Middle Tennessee State and the Lady Govs of Austin Peay. The Lady Raiders compiled a record of 13-3 in the OVC and racked up 24 wins overall. In fact, their 24-6 overall record was better than Austin Peay's 21-8 season.

The Lady Raiders will return seven players from last year's championship team, including seniors Jessica Beaty and Amanda Bevis.

MTSU will be led for the 10th year by head coach Lewis Bivens. Bivens has posted a career winning average of 71 percent, including a nine-year stint as the head coach of Carson-Newman College Jefferson City, Tenn.

In his first year as the head coach of the Lady Raiders, Bivens not only led the team to the OVC title, but to a berth in the NCAA tourney. Since then, he has taken at least a share of the OVC title three times.

Bivens believes the team can repeat the success of last season.

"It's always up in the air," he said. "I think that if we can stay healthy we have a shot."

Bivens is aided in his coaching duties by a pair of assistants.

Associate head coach Stephany Smith has accumulated a record of 140-67 as a full-time assistant.

Also helping Bivens on the bench is assistant coach Altherias Warmley.

On the floor this season, MTSU will be led by the tandem of Bevis and Beaty.

Beaty, a forward, has a career shooting average of 39 percent. From behind the three-point arc, her average is 35 percent.

She is accurate from the charity stripe as well with an average of 76 percent. She pulls down an average of 6.7 rebounds a game and averages 11.2 ppg.

Bevis, a center, transferred from Northwest Shoals Junior College last season. She was named to the All-Tournament and All-Regional teams in 1994, averaging 16 points and 10 rebounds in 1995. Bevis holds the school record for rebounds in a single game with 25 at Shoals.

Last season she was hampered by a shoulder injury, but managed
